

TRANSITIONAL INDEPENDENT LIVING PROGRAM STATEMENT

The Transitional Independent Living Program at Hathaway-Sycamores provides housing and support services for young adults who have previous foster or probation placements. The program is designed to meet the needs of young adults who want to benefit from mental health services and who would be homeless without our housing support. The mental health services include individual, case management, psychiatric consultation and medication support.

Hathaway-Sycamores lease apartments which are then subleased to our program participants who pay a lower subsidized rent. The young adults will generally move through phases of our program beginning in a more structured setting and graduating to a more independent environment. Our staff members have meetings and trainings with the young adults throughout the week and are always available by phone for emergency situations.

After admission each young adult is an active participant on the Support Team and contributes to the development of his/her own Life Plan
